

NEGRO YOUTH ADMITS SLAYING PRETTY CO-ED

rested last night on the tip of Banks Taylor, negro pantry boy at the hotel, who was secretly detained last Thursday night for questioning. Brown said Moore was grilling all night before the confession was wrung from him.

Brown said Taylor told him Moore had recently come into possession of a pistol, which he said Moore had told him about. The sheriff said he then took Taylor to Moore's home where he was confronted with the statement regarding the pistol.

Hairs on Pistol.
Moore, at first, he said, vehemently denied it but finally said he had the pistol and led the sheriff to its hiding place beneath some plumbing underneath his house. The pistol, the sheriff said, was a heavy 32-caliber Spanish 8-shot automatic, fully loaded.

Miss Clevenger, who recently had come to North Carolina from her State Island home and was visiting in company with her uncle, Professor W. L. Clevenger, of North Carolina State College, at Raleigh. Her green pajama-clad body was found sprawled on the floor of her hotel room about 8 a. m., July 16. A bullet had pierced her heart and lodged in her back and her face was mutilated from a severe beating.

Text of Confession.
The text of Moore's confession, as announced by Sheriff Brown, follows: "My name is Martin Moore. I am 22 years old. I live at 84 1-2 Hill street. I am employed as a hall man at the Battery Park hotel.

"I finished my work at 5 p. m. on July 15, 1936, and left for home. I sneaked back into the hotel the same night through a back door about 9 p. m. and I hid downstairs in my locker.

"About 12:45 a. m. on July 16, I went up the back staircase to the second floor and went to room 224. I opened the door. The room was not locked. When I entered the room the girl was on the bed. I walked in. She screamed. Then I shot her.

"She still kept screaming and I hit her with the gun in the face three or four times until she stopped screaming.

"When I shot she jumped up and started to run out. I then hit her with the gun. She fell on the floor almost near the bathroom.

"I unscrewed the shade and the bulb from the socket and placed it somewhere and came out. As I was about to leave the room some man standing in the doorway, said: 'What was the scream?' I said to the man: 'It's what I was wondering.'

"I then closed the door and went down the steps to the mezzanine floor and down the mezzanine to the ball room.

"I passed through a heavy door and screen door, reached the porch, climbed on the banister, stepped down half way and jumped.

"Then I ran to my right on a street west of the hotel to Montford street and started walking on Hill street. I hung around on Hill street until time to go back to work. I saw no one around Hill street.

"I went back to work at 4 a. m. I still had the gun on me when I went back to work.

"Home To Sleep."
"I worked until 10 minutes to five. I then went home and went to sleep. I brought the gun back home with me this time and put it under the toilet beam. That is the same place where Deputy Sheriff Tom Brown, with other officers, and Banks Taylor found it after I had told them where I had hid it. I carried you all to it.

"I saw this girl when she came in. I then saw her come out of her room and went around the corner to her right.

"I don't know where she went to. When I sneaked back into the hotel through the back door I had the same 32 automatic that you have, down the front of my trousers, at 12:45 a. m. July 26, and went to the second floor to sneak into the room to look for money.

"I tried the doors on Rooms 218 and 219. They would not open. The next room I tried was Room 224. I believed the young girl was in bed. I tried the door, it was opened, I did not lock. I did not steal anything from this girl's room.

"I got scared. I figured she was not in the room. My reason was that I found the door unlocked, but when I got in she was in there and she screamed. That's why I shot her.

"She screamed some more and started to run out. It was then I struck her with the gun. When she fell on the floor I struck her several times to stop her screaming, as I was scared and did not want to be caught.

"At this point he was questioned by Sheriff Brown as follows: "What was the scream?" I said to the man: 'It's what I was wondering.'

"I then closed the door and went down the steps to the mezzanine floor and down the mezzanine to the ball room.

"I passed through a heavy door and screen door, reached the porch, climbed on the banister, stepped down half way and jumped.

"Then I ran to my right on a street west of the hotel to Montford street and started walking on Hill street. I hung around on Hill street

LINDBERGH PREPARES TO EXPLAIN INVENTION

Artificial Heart Will Be Demonstrated Before World Scientists.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh put the last touch upon his artificial heart to-night in preparation for a demonstration tomorrow before 200 scientists from all parts of the world.

The scientists gathered for the international congress of experimental cytology which opens Monday for a week's session.

Colonel Lindbergh meanwhile moved into the hotel of Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner of the Rockefeller Institute of New York, to facilitate further collaboration.

The artificial heart, a mechanical pump into which no infection can enter, was created more than a year ago in New York by Colonel Lindbergh, who contributed his mechanical knowledge, and Dr. Carrel.

Through its use, Dr. Carrel said, it was possible to keep alive for an indefinite period an entire vital organ removed from the body by surgery.

Its outstanding feature was said to be ability to circulate blood through an organ without transmitting an infection, one of the great dangers of mechanical pumps used for a similar purpose.

Although the operation of the heart was described in detail, the details of the pump were still a closely guarded secret to be revealed for the first time before the congress.

TAX RECEIPTS REVEAL INCREASE IN FLORIDA

Five Million Dollar Gain Received From Estates, Beverage Funds.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—State Treasurer W. V. Knott said today receipts from two sources, estate and beverage taxes, almost accounted for the five-million-dollar increase in the state general revenue income for the fiscal year, ended June 30, over the previous 12 months.

The bulk of governmental expense is paid from this fund, including salaries of officials and employees.

The $3,307,222.60 estate tax receipts were composed largely of payments from the diabolical estate. Estate taxes for 1934-35 amounted to $1,087,237.19.

The new beverage fund, taxes collected on liquor, wine and beer, brought in $2,540,761.25.

General revenue receipts were $12,068,288.85 last year as against $6,985,637.54 for the previous year. The $11,703,813.13 compared with $4,734,893.48. The balance was $1,159,837.87.

Licenses Show Drop.
Revenue from all licenses totaled $314,015.85, a drop compared with the 1934-35 total of $935,233.62.

General occupational licenses contributed $217,235.54 to this fund, automobiles $292,264, and railroad companies $37,792.30. Receipts from insurance company licenses were $67,000, while agents paid $71,085.

The one cent gasoline tax accounted for $2,672,334.54 as against $2,445,934.93 for the previous year. Increases also are shown in the two per cent insurance premium tax with $719,407.88, utilities tax with $281,883.68, and intangibles, $274,397.14.

Ad valorem taxes totaled $256,660.08 and interest on state deposits was $18,881.01. Fees and commissions from the secretary of state, including $15,000 in candidates fees, were $55,206.74.

Teachers Get Salary.
The largest disbursement was $4,464,198.30 to the teachers' salary fund. Educational appropriation expenses, which include the University of Florida, Florida State College for Women, the negro Agricultural and Mechanical College, and the Deaf and Blind institution $1,910,904.38, a $51,438.92 reduction compared with 1934-1935.

Executive department expenditures rose from $470,200.70 to $692,186.14, while the judicial department dropped from $630,585.12 to $628,591.20.

Board of control disbursements were $9,827.02 as against $5,939.35 and student loan expenses dropped from $108,526.54 to $125,012.09.

AUSTRIAN JEWS WATCH ANTI-SEMITIC TRENDS

Government's Pact of Friendship With Germany Seen as Cause.

VIENNA, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Austria's 250,000 Jews today watched with growing anxiety the spread of a new anti-Semitic campaign, close on the heels of this nation's pact of friendship with Nazi Germany.

Some Jewish leaders held to the belief Austria no longer is a safe harbor for their people, largely as a result of the Austro-German treaty and growth of the Nazi party here.

Jewish communities were said to be swamped with applications for emigration to Palestine and other countries.

The newest wave of anti-Semitic propaganda was apparent today in denunciations by Catholic, labor, peasant and merchant organizations. They charged the Jews with paving the path for communism.

For the campaign is not confined to Nazi charges. The Austrian Nazis and liberal national elements are leading the anti-Jewish program, but great resentment is expressed by many peasant and business organizations.

The Catholic labor army, the "Freiheitsbund," admits strong anti-Semitic policies. The Jesuit Father Georg Bichlmayr, leader of the 200,000 members of the Catholic youth union, is back of this movement.

Jewish leaders in Vienna asserted 90 per cent of the Jews in Austria have reached a state of poverty as a result of this propaganda.

A member of the Jewish national committee asserted: "One can no longer find any Jews in the Austrian state departments, nor in the Austrian courts. The city of Vienna employs only a few Jewish physicians."

The Vienna hospitals presently refused to employ Jewish student doctors. In a short time, therefore, Austria will have no Jewish professors in the university of medical faculties.

"The same policy is followed in other university branches. In the past two years no Jewish teachers have been given positions in the Austrian high schools."

PRIMARY TUESDAY.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—With some county officials preoccupied over finances necessary to set up machinery, Floridians looked today toward Tuesday's special democratic primary to select a nominee to the post left vacant by the late United States Senator Park Trammell.

erly Alma, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Auhl, of Denver, Col.

Began Newspaper Career.

Bender began his newspaper career with the Springfield, Ill., Evening News, of which his father was publisher, following his graduation from Knox College, Galesburg, in 1911. Later he joined the International News Service from which he went to the United Press in 1913. He was credited with a business representative in Illinois and then in New York before being assigned to Washington, where he soon established a reputation as a brilliant reporter. He was credited with dozens of beats during the stirring years preceding the United States entry into the World War, and during the war years.

Bender became news manager of the United News, as the night service of the United Press was then known, in 1921 and held that post until 1924 when he was made news manager. He was appointed vice president and general news manager in 1927 and held that position until his retirement, January 1, 1936.

FORECAST OF CROPS WILL BE MADE TODAY

is behind locked doors until the material has reached the public through newspapermen.

A combination of military and prison methods are used to keep the information secret until the instant of their public release.

More than 85,000 farmers who serve as voluntary reporters are the groundwork for crop estimates and surveys. They send their reports to state representatives of the crop reporting board.

These are summarized and forwarded to Washington. In major producing states the state information is placed in a special envelope and the postoffice here rushes it to a locked mailbox in the office of the agriculture secretary.

Secrecy Involved.

There are two keys to this mailbox, one for the secretary and one for the crop reporting board. Both must be used to open it. On the day of a re-burned over around Markham-Palo, including Superior.

Fires around Cromwell, Kelly Lake and Severson were reported under control last night.

FOREST FIRES SPREAD IN MICHIGAN AREA

MUNISING, Mich., Aug. 9.—(P)—Forest fires, bursting out of control in timber made tinder-like by drought, brought a fresh menace to Michigan's upper peninsula today.

A new fire in a state game refuge near the Hiawatha National forest threatened to destroy the lumber settlement of Nelstrand, and reports from there were that the community had been abandoned in the face of the roaring flames.

Conservation officers called for men today to reinforce the 150 CCC workers and volunteers attempting to establish a barrier there.

Near Singletown, in the same area, 400 workers fought a blaze today which already had burned over hundreds of acres. The town was not in immediate danger, however, workers reported.

Trunk, saved last week when a shift of wind turned a fire in that area back after it had been burning a half mile of the village, again was in danger today when the blaze burst out of control. Workers said the fire broke out suddenly after thin branches in control for several days, and jumped fire lines established to the north.

A fire which had burned in the vicinity of Gwin, in the western part of the state, was reported under control today.

The opinion was expressed in connection with a survey on land use by Dr. J. C. Gray, assistant to Administrator Rexford Guy Twigg and a technical advisor to the President's great plains drouth committee.

This group is preparing a series of long-range measures intended to modify the effects of future drouths. It was expected the "basic changes" outlined today would be included in the report to President Roosevelt.

Dr. Gray's study asserted that more than half of Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota included plowed crop land which officials said must be returned to grass or forage crops.

Similar areas of large size were designated in Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico with smaller districts in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The report said that much of the area which had been designated as "official drouth area" during the current arid season was "good farm land capable of producing profitable crops" with normal rainfall.

The administration said that emergency federal measures would suffice in these areas, such as loans and relief jobs.

Emergency measures could not solve the problem for large areas "continually subject to drouth and therefore not adapted to crop farming," the agency added, however.

These three types of readjustment were suggested: Conversion of crop land to grazing range; increases in size of existing farm units; and small water reservoir projects to assure livestock feed.

SHIFT IN LAND USE TERMED NECESSARY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(P)—A shift of millions of acres of land in the great plains from crop farming to stock ranching and other forms of grazing was termed "necessary to combat continued drouth" today by the Resettlement Administration.

FRANCE IS CAUTIOUS OVER GERMAN MOVE

erlands. Czechoslovakia, originally not among those asked to join in the pact, brought the number of nations to nine.

Had Predicted War.

Debate in parliament, in the press and through government sources had predicted a bitter European war between fascist and liberal governments if any of the powers went to aid of either side in the Spanish rebellion.

France, warning she would not be left in the lurch if developments warranted, held at least six planes at Toulouse ready to hop to Spain at a moment's notice.

Under her neutrality ban, these ships cannot now be forwarded although it was reported they had been purchased by the Spanish government.

A decline in the number of volunteers from France who sought to fight in Spain was noted. A group of 200 was reported to have reached Barcelona last Friday, but thereafter Catalan loyalists warned volunteers appear only if they had specific permits.

Others coming to Spain in an effort to join the loyalist army, they warned, did so at their own risk.

BRITISH PLEASED OVER OUTLOOK

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(P)—British hopes were high tonight that the nine-power pact, pledged sponsored by France soon will effect outright neutrality of European powers in the Spanish civil war.

Lord Halifax, lord privy seal, was acting in place of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who will return to the foreign office tomorrow to canvass week-end developments before resuming his holiday.

German assurances of neutrality, with reservations, given yesterday to France in the nine-power co-operative pact, were described as "a step toward the preservation of neutrality in Spain's troubles, particularly pleased the British."

Acceptance of the plan by Premier Mussolini in principle, and the Italian questions concerning the "moral solidarity" toward either the rightist or leftist side in Spain created a perplexing poser yet to be solved.

The situation in Spain was still most grave in Britain's view, however, evidenced by the fact preparations were being pushed to evacuate all Britons who want to leave Spain.

Latest information showed 60 Britons were in Madrid in addition to about 25 embassy and consulate staff members.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN IN SPANISH SITUATION

BERLIN, Aug. 9.—(P)—Germans in Berlin were far more concerned tonight outwardly, at least—over results in the Olympic games than in the Spanish civil war.

The great share of Spanish news was published on inside pages of newspapers.

General Hermann Wilhelm Goerring's National Zeitung, however, placed on its front page news of the French debate over neutrality.

The newspaper underlined and vigorously commented on the Americanated Clothing Workers—who are in turn vice president and treasurer of the league, will be among the principal speakers at the meeting tomorrow.

Berry insisted tonight that his organization was taking no part in the internal struggle which has rocked the A. F. of L.

He heartily denied reports that affiliation with the league in the Roosevelt campaign would indicate sympathetic leanings for Lewis' industrial unionists. Flushed from a political victory in Tennessee where he aided in the nomination of Gordon Browning, democrat, as governor in a state party split, Berry emphasized that none of the league go beyond labor quarrels or the 19

J. O. U. A. M. WILL OPEN 2-DAY MEET TUESDAY

National Officers on Program; Daughters of America to Gather Also.

More than 200 members of the Georgia J. O. U. A. M. and several national officers will attend the two-day annual convention which begins here tomorrow at the Piedmont hotel. It was announced yesterday by Dr. M. D. Collins, national chaplain of the fraternity, and a recent past state councilor.

E. D. Martin, national councilor, of Nashville, Tenn.; Robert Rouppell, national vice councilor, of New York city; James L. Wilmet, national secretary, of Philadelphia; Omer Stube, national treasurer, of Covington, Ky.; Art Llewellyn, past national councilor, of Cincinnati, and Dr. Collins are among the national officers expected to take part in the programs tomorrow and Wednesday.

Leo F. Griffin, of Savannah, state councilor who will preside, will be assisted in arrangements by Judge Ralph McClelland, of Atlanta, state vice councilor, Virgil E. Echols, state secretary, and a recent past state councilor.

FINAL TRIBUTE IS PAID TO CAROLINA SOLO

Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, Atlanta, Attends McClelland Funeral.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Thousands of persons from every walk of life paid a final tribute today to Representative J. J. McClelland, democrat, South Carolina, chairman of the house military affairs committee. The funeral for the veteran 61-year-old South Carolina congressman, who died Thursday, was held at 5:30 this afternoon.

An estimated crowd of 15,000 witnessed the final rites in Springwood cemetery.

A huge bank of flowers, streamers on which carried the names of national and state governmental agencies, patriotic and fraternal orders, and high officials, decorated the funeral service which was held.

In the center of the display was a large spray of gladioli, ferns and palms, sent by President Roosevelt.

Among members of the honorary escort were the two senators from South Carolina, Ellison D. Smith and James P. Byrnes, and the South Carolina governor, Governor Olin D. Johnston, representatives Joe Smith, of Connecticut; A. J. May, of Kentucky, and Paul Brown, of Georgia; General Charles P. Summerall, Charleston; General Van Horn Moseley, Atlanta, Ga.; and General W. T. Clegg, Washington.

Eight army planes from Langley field, Va., commanded by Lieutenant Colonel A. H. Gilkerson, and three other planes from Fort Bragg, N. C., flew over the city in formation and engaged in a brief series of maneuvers while services were in progress.

The Rev. R. F. Morris, pastor of Buncombe Street Methodist church, officiated.

Representative McClelland was active in promotion of adequate national defense and an ardent advocate of developing the army air service to a point of being second to none in the world. He had announced recently, due to ill health, he was not offering for re-election.

'Parole Prediction Is Science,' Leopold Claims in Prison Cell

Contents to Justice Department That System Is Accurate Enough To Be So Classified; Uses William F. Laune Pen Name.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.) JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 9.—Nathan Leopold, one of America's most notorious criminals, was engaged today in an argument with the United States Department of Justice over his standing as a scientist.

The brilliant student-killer carried on his end of the debate from the Illinois penitentiary cell where he must spend the rest of his life for the "perfect crime" slaying of wealthy Bobby Franks 12 years ago.

Bone of contention was a system he had helped develop as a prisoner to predict which of his fellow convicts would go straight if they were freed on parole.

Leopold contended the system was accurate enough to be classed as a science.

Ray L. Huff, parole executive of the board of parole of the United States Department of Justice, took an opposite view.

The unique debate was carried on in the pages of the Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, a Northwestern University publication issued at Evanston, Ill.

Uses Pen Name.

Leopold started it late last year before his partner in crime, Richard Loeb, was slashed to death in a prison bathroom by a fellow convict, who resented Loeb's advances.

Writing under the pen name of William F. Laune, Leopold told of the work he had done in the office of Ferris F. Laune, prison parole secretary who was experimenting with parole prediction.

Prediction methods on which some state parole boards now base their recommendations include only items which appear on the prisoner's record: His environment at the time of arrest, his age, his sentence and so forth.

Laune's system, Leopold explained, was based on the assumption that convicts knew more about their prison fellows than an outsider could possibly learn. If these opinions could be sorted into factors and tabulated, it was contended they would be a more accurate basis for predictions than records alone would be.

To assemble such a table, Laune gathered Leopold and a group of other convicts as his helpers.

After Leopold's account was published, Warden Joseph Ragen announced he would change Leopold's job immediately.

A few months later, Laune published a dissertation on his experiments in his doctor's degree at Northwestern. In it he talked of a "convict X" who only at his own insistence remains anonymous.

"He has been my active co-worker from the inception of the study to its completion," Laune wrote, "and without him it could not have been undertaken at all. To him is due entire credit for all the statistical work of the investigation."

"Convict X," Laune said, "is a man of 30 serving a life sentence, holds a bachelor's degree from one of the leading universities, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and his score on the army alpha intelligence test is 202."

The description fit Leopold exactly. He was 18 when he and Loeb battered in Bobby Franks' head and dumped his naked body in a railroad culvert in 1924. He had used his brilliance then to carry out a crime on the lines of a laboratory experiment in psychology.

Remains Anonymous.

Despite Laune's high praise, the convict preferred to remain anonymous when called on to defend his stand that parole prediction was a science.

Parole Executive Huff, of the Department of Justice, launched his attack in the current issue of the Journal of Criminology. Huff challenged Laune's system on the grounds that it had no definite yardstick.

It had not been decided, he said, when a prediction was successful; whether a convict had to behave only during the period of parole, or after that time.

Parole practices, he asserted, "differ in fact and degree" in different states.

Huff criticized further that "data appear to be limited to facts about the prisoner," whereas he said they "must include measures of change in prisoner and community relationships."

He revealed that Laune's method had been applied to records of 5,912 federal prisoners and "results were secured which were in agreement" with Leopold's article, but when the scale was applied to 3,000 other cases it "did not predict."

Although approving Laune's efforts, Huff asserted parole prediction was not yet science.

Leopold replied in the same issue, writing like time anonymously under the heading, "Communicated by Ferris F. Laune."

Although agreeing with Huff that parole students should adopt more precise standards, the convict said the predictions could be applied to different parole systems by proper comparisons. He pointed out that although physicists use the metric system of measurement, they can easily translate from centimeters to inches and from grams to ounces.

Community factors of which Huff spoke, he said, would effect all parole prisoners in the same general way. He cited the economic depression as an example.

He concluded with the assertion that parole prediction could not be condemned on the grounds it deals in probabilities, because he said all science was tending in that direction.

REBELS MAKE PLANS FOR ATTACK ON MADRID

Ponte and Colonel Valdivia protecting each flank.

Fascist militia, said to number 200,000 throughout Spain, will form a second line of march until regular soldiers clear the way through leftist forces to the suburbs of Madrid, it was asserted here.

Then, said the officers, the enthusiastic volunteers will be sent into the fight, block by block through the streets under cover of rebel artillery and protected by rebel planes.

Continued attacks by popular front troops on the Zaragoza rebel strongholds, it was said here, marked the only serious offensive by loyalists now under way.

Rebel officers admitted insurgents were handicapped by lack of sufficient airplanes but said this "is only temporary."

The troops of General Mola, northern commander, were cheered by news from Tangier, international zone of Morocco, that the foreign control committee there had given implied recognition of the rebel government.

Troops Transported.

Officers here said General Franco's Moroccan troops carried the most modern equipment of the Spanish army to aid their march. (Troops estimated to number more than 8,000 were transported from Spanish Morocco by General Franco to reinforce his southern army.)

The northern army spent the week-end strengthening rebel positions on the equipment of the Spanish army to aid their march. (Troops estimated to number more than 8,000 were transported from Spanish Morocco by General Franco to reinforce his southern army.)

Supply trains and truckloads of rebel reinforcements moved along the highways toward Gijon, Bilbao and San Sebastian where leftists fought with their backs to the Bay of Biscay and the French frontier.

Defeat of these cities, to cut off danger of attack from the rear when the army turns toward Madrid, has been a rebel objective since the revolt began.

Both Pamplona and Burgos, rebel held, assumed the outward appearance of cities enjoying a fete day. Churches were packed by citizens and soldiers, wearing varied uniforms of red, scarlet and blue shirts or regular khaki of the army. Later they strolled along the boulevards and sipped drinks in the cafes.

REV. LOUIS EMMERTH GETS SEMINARY POST

The Rev. Louis C. Emmert, S. M., professor at Marist College here, will head the faculty of the preparatory seminary of the order in South Langhorne, Pa., it was announced yesterday in Savannah.

Rev. Father Emmert, 31, is in Savannah supplying for the summer vacation period at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist. He will leave for his new post the latter part of this month.

69 PERSONS KILLED IN MOTOR CRASHES

Tennessee and Illinois Lead Nation in Week-End Deaths.

Automobile accidents took at least 69 lives throughout the nation over the week-end.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., four persons were killed as their car plunged off the side of Lookout mountain into a 100-foot ravine.

In the field of accident prevention, the City of Pueblo, Colo., population 50,000, attributed its record of no automobile deaths during the first half of the year to "stiff" penalties for traffic offenses, and judges who "play no favorites."

An Albany man who has driven for 37 years without an accident or a conviction on a traffic charge was selected as New York's "safest driver."

Week-end deaths by states: Alabama 1; California 2; Connecticut 1; Florida 1; Georgia 3; Illinois 8; Indiana 5; Kansas 4; Massachusetts 1; Michigan 5; Minnesota 3; Missouri 4; Montana 1; New Jersey 2; New Mexico 1; New York 7; Rhode Island 1; Tennessee 8; Texas 5; Washington 5; Wisconsin 1.

3 MATTRESSES FIRED BY WOMAN PRISONER

Three mattresses in the matron's ward at police headquarters were damaged by fire late yesterday afternoon when, according to police reports, Billie Chase, 33, of 984 West Peachtree street, dropped lighted matches on the beds.

The blaze was quickly extinguished.

She and Irene Byron, 21, same address, were taken into custody yesterday afternoon on charges of intoxication. Additional charges of disorderly conduct were placed against the Chase woman.

2-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED IN CRASH NEAR ROME

ROME, Ga., Aug. 9.—(AP)—A two-year-old boy was killed and six persons were injured in a head-on collision of automobiles on the Sumnerville road near here late today.

The infant was listed as Dennis Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, who, with three other children, were injured. Mrs. Davis was admitted to a local hospital believed suffering from internal injuries.

A man who occupied the car in collision with the Davis car, listed as C. W. Wadsworth, was reported injured slightly.

KNOX TAKES REST.

800 REBELS KILLED IN NINE-HOUR BATTLE

organized and without morale.

The government claimed many were deserting to join loyal forces, convinced of the futility of their cause.

"The insurgents are now fighting a purely defensive fight," the loyalists asserted. "They are unable to make gains and are attempting to hold present positions."

Victory Feast.

A victory feast was proclaimed in the town of Villamayor, Sanago, Cuenca province. Trucks laden with food and wine were dispatched for the town.

(From Bayonne, France, came reports of another rebel setback. Northern headquarters of the fascists near border town asserted were in flames after bombardment by loyal artillery. A munitions storehouse nearby exploded and caused serious damage.)

(From Burgos, northern headquarters of General Emilio Mola, came word the rebels had called a halt to their advance from the south by General Francisco Franco's forces before a concerted drive on Madrid.)

(The northern forces also were rushing new troops to the north again to oppose General Sebastian, Gijon and Bilbao loyalists.)

(At Tangier, in the international zone of Morocco, the British-French forces, General Franco's rules there gave implied recognition to the rebels. A communication stated "passports issued by authorities now directing the Spanish zone" would be "recognized as valid by Spanish members of the international directorate, was not a party to the communication.")

The revolt began in Spanish Morocco, General Franco's forces in the region have been in control.)

The loyalist government announced today a special commission had been formed to take charge of art treasures saved when churches and convents were confiscated by the state.

"The collection of national property," a communication stated, "will be carefully guarded by the state. Every effort will be made to prevent its being taken abroad and disposed of there."

Priests were asserted to have fled Spain before the revolt broke out and other treasures with them.

"Revolutionists endowed with a hatred of culture and art have been destroying national monuments on every side, but now guards of the militia will be stationed to prevent recurrences," the communication stated.

The first government data released on prisoners in Madrid today placed the number at more than 4,000. Eighteen hundred of these, including Generals Fanjul, Capaz and Villegas, were in the city's "model jail." The women's prison and a former convent school hold the others.

Antonio Primo de Rivera, fascist leader, still was held at Alicante prison, loyalists said. Included among prisoners at San Antonio were said to be 107 priests, dramatist Minos Saca, and former Director of Public Safety Valdivia.

The government said those held in connection with the revolt will be treated "in accordance with the military code provided for handling prisoners of war." All were given regular prison fare and most of the prisoners were provided with beds. Some slept on mattresses placed on the floors.

Conversation Censored.

They are allowed to mingle with other prisoners during exercise hours and are permitted free conversation but cannot participate in loud discussions of the revolt.

Secret police still were busy today seeking to place responsibility for the revolt and searched the residence of former Minister of the Interior Salvador Alonso. The search, loyalists said, "proves conclusively that he was one of the chief conspirators." His whereabouts were unknown today and presumably he was in hiding.

Police raided the palace of the late Marquis Cortina Goya and arrested the marchioness and all members of her family when they discovered a number of religious paintings and other treasures allegedly stored there for shipment abroad.

The government said it intercepted a message from General Mola to General Franco criticizing the latter for failing to protect the rebel gunboat, Dato, sunk at Algeciras with a load of insurgents from Morocco.

CITIZEN OF BRITAIN KILLED BY REBEL SHIP

SAINT JEAN DE LUZ, France, Aug. 9.—(AP)—A British citizen was killed and his wife slightly injured by a shell from the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera in Gijon harbor, it was learned here today.

The couple was identified only as Mr. and Mrs. Saville.

Mrs. Saville, with her husband's body, was brought to Saint Jean de Luz aboard the British destroyer Comet.

The ship's officers said the Savilles' yacht "Blue Shadow" ran on a sandbar outside Gijon harbor.

(Lloyd's register lists Rupert Saville as owner of yacht Blue Shadow.)

Saville put into Gijon in hope of repairing damage to the yacht, ignorant of the fact the rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera lay off shore preparing to shell the leftist port.

Warned when he reached shore that the port was about to be shelled, the Savilles put out to sea.

Rebel gunners, apparently believing the yacht was a government craft, opened fire.

A direct hit killed Saville instantly, the Comet's officers said, almost cutting the body in two.

Leftist boatsmen from Gijon brought the yacht ashore under rebel fire.

The British destroyer Comet called at the port and picked up the Savilles and 13 other foreigners, mostly Britons.

TAMPA LATIN CITIZENS CONTRIBUTE TO LOYALISTS

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—More than 30,000 Latin citizens of Tampa, mostly cigar workers and their families, were called on tonight to contribute financial support to the Spanish loyalist government against the revolutionists. A committee for the defense of the Spanish people's front was organized, composed of representatives of a dozen city labor unions.

Sometime this week, Jose Martinez, chairman of the committee said, appeals will be made to all cigar factories and collections taken to provide financial assistance. More than $300 was raised at the organization meeting today, Martinez said. Proceeds of the campaign will be sent to Spain, he added.

CHRISTIANITY TERMED BEST CURB ON CRIME

"The influence of Christianity would do more to decrease crime in the city than any other agency," the Rev. R. R. Holmes, president and founder of Holmes Institute, declared in a sermon at Zion Hill Baptist church yesterday morning.

He scored the small attendances in negro churches, saying, "If the personal touch taught by Jesus was practiced 100 per cent by the memberships, attendance would increase 50 per cent."

CHAMPION DIVER caught by the camera

in mid-air. Here's Mickey Riley, long-time champion of the springboard. Mickey is a loyal Camel smoker. "I always smoke Camels," he says. "Camels help my digestion. I enjoy them at my meals, and afterwards I just settle back with Camels—and it's a pretty good world. Boy, Camels have a great taste!" Camels never get on your nerves—never tire your taste.

AS EVERY Camel smoker knows, Camels at mealtime help to create a cheery sense of well-being. You eat with relish—digest with greater ease. For it is a fact that Camels assist the normal process of digestion. They increase the flow of digestive fluids...alkaline digestive fluids...in a pleasant way.

Like Frank Buck, Lee Gehlbach, Mickey Riley, Bill Tilden, Tony Manero, Willie Hoppe, and millions of other discriminating smokers who prefer Camels and recommend them, you too will find Camels an enjoyable aid in easing the tension of modern life. With their "lift" ...their aid to digestion...and their mild, rich flavor, Camels do indeed set you right! And Camel's firm packing assures no loose particles.

Each Camel at mealtime adds its measure of cheer ...stimulates digestion...increases alkalinity. So—

"For Digestion's Sake... Smoke Camels"

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

Culbertson on Contract

By E. L. CULBERTSON
World's Champion Bridge and Greatest Card Analyst

WHEN TO MAKE A JUMP OVERCALL

A jump overall of two in a suit (as two spades over an opponent's bid of one heart) shows a hand containing 3-2 honor tricks or slightly more, with:

1. Two five-card or longer suits. With such a hand a takeout double may lose a round of bidding, whereas a jump overall makes it possible to show the first suit and the general strength of the hand with a single bid, and at the second opportunity to show the other suit.

2. A hand containing one strong suit and all eight winners. The advantage of the strength-showing jump overall is found in the following cases:

1. Suppose South bids one diamond and West, second hand holds:

AK1054 ♥ AQ75 ♦ 6 3 2

If West doubles, East's response will probably be two clubs. West must then bid two spades and risk having the bidding dropped (though East may have support for hearts), or bid three spades, which forces him to a game contract even though East may have no support for either suit.

The jump overall shows one of the two suits and gives the impression of strength at the same time. It asks for a light raise, yet retains the advantage of being able to pass short of game partner has a blank.

Simple Counting.

On many hands, good defense resolves itself down to a simple matter of counting up to nine or ten. By this, I refer to the fact that, in these cases, all a defender need do is to count the tricks he can plainly see declarer will make against a certain line of defense. If that number will be fatal from the defenders' point of view, the defense must be aimed at another chance, no matter how remote.

Today's hand is a very simple example of how to count tricks. North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North East South West

1. Diamond Pass 1 no trump. Pass

2. no trump. Pass 3 no trump. (f. h.)

West opened the five of spades, dummy ducked and declarer won with the queen. Three rounds of diamonds followed, East winning the trick. Now it was up to East to take inventory.

He could see that dummy's fifth diamond would become established after his (East's) last stopper should be removed and that declarer's insight tricks would thus come to: the spade already won and the ace to come; three diamonds and three clubs—a total of eight. But (and that "but") was the crucial point of the reasoning: one of those spades (the diamond) still to be established depended on the time element! If East could first establish three tricks for his own side, these in addition to the diamond tricks would defeat the contract. The question, therefore, was simply where to look for those three tricks. His partner had led a spade and, presumably that suit could be established by knocking out dummy's ace. But after that, how could West gain the lead? East would have no more spades to lead to him, and therefore unless West had the heart ace for immediate entry, declarer's tricks would be cashed first. Thus, on a spade-establishment plan, West must hold the heart ace. To establish East's own heart suit, however, West could hold either of the two cards; the heart ace or the heart queen, an incomparably better chance!

So East shifted to the fourth highest heart, and declarer could never take more than eight tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: I bid one spade as dealer, vulnerable on this hand:

AKQJ108753 ♥ K104 ♦ K 4 5

My partner said later I either should have opened with four spades, or passed. Who was right?

Answer: Your partner was right.

A great artist ... Eleanor LeMaire ... will do the job. The art salons of the world know her... her masterpieces are to be found in magnificent homes ... in great department stores over the nation. We chose her for Rich's in Atlanta.

Excuse our dust.

We're Going Places

Our entire third floor is being redesigned and redecorated. But in the meantime business as usual ... no interference in our service to the public. Our stocks are complete ... new as tomorrow ... in fact, our fall apparel has never been lovelier.

Something like the cocoon and the butterfly is this story of our APPAREL FLOOR. For a while we are going to be like that ... a sort of cocoon of confusion. But out of this cocoon of confusion will come a butterfly of beauty.

And so for a while ... a little while ... excuse our dust ... while RICH'S famous "THIRD FLOOR" has its beauty treatment ...

WE'RE GOING PLACES ... FOR YOU!

Four Young Boys Enjoy Camping On Lake Phoebe's Picturesque Shore

By Sally Forth.

DR. THORNWELL JACOBS gave a spend-the-night party one night last week. His guests were a group of his friends and staunch admirers from the very young social contingent, including John Knox Jr., De Sales Harrison Jr., Trenton Tunnell Jr., and Howard McCall III.

It seems that the quartet had an insane desire to camp out, so Dr. Jacobs invited them to pitch their tents on the banks of beautiful Lake Phoebe on the campus of Oglethorpe University. They chose a spot near the dam, and also in full view of the life guards, after a little adult persuasion.

And what a grand time they had swimming and diving, eating around their campfire, and sleeping out-of-doors. Of course the Harrison chauffeur went along, just in case he was needed to help erect the tents or lend a helping hand with the cooking.

Dr. Jacobs experienced a sense of proprietary pride in entertaining the youngsters. "You see, two of them are Oglethorpe grandsons," he explained. "John Knox's mother and father are both alumni of Oglethorpe, and De Sales Harrison's father is also an alumnus. You remember, of course, when John Knox Sr. and De Sales Harrison Sr. were members of the first college football team and won many laurels for their alma mater."

Early the next morning, Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Harrison drove out to Oglethorpe to take the boys and their camping outfits home. It was difficult to tell whether the campers or their host enjoyed the outing more.

THE FAMOUS "Moon Over Miami" last winter undoubtedly played a large part in the romance of one of Atlanta's loveliest blondes and a well-known easterner, for from all Sally can gather, wedding bells and orange blossoms will soon be in order of the day.

They met on a fishing trip and from then on they were never happy save in each other's company, and their friends soon began to realize that the couple were quite in accord with the old saying that "two is company." The young belle, who is a breath-taking blonde, according to the description given the fairer of the fair sex by a male acquaintance of Sally Forth's is a representative of a distinguished Atlanta family, in whose home the young man was a recent visitor.

Friends of the young girl and her family immediately began to sense a romance in the offing, and at this writing it is almost an established fact that a wedding will soon take place as the young belle and her mother left recently for the coast to visit the young man's family.

SALLY was delighted to learn recently of the honors won at Luther Gulick Camp at South Casco, Maine, by Margaret Hodgson, lovely young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Hodgson. This is her first year at the camp and she was the only new girl to be elected a song leader and for that reason an especially designed and decorated canoe paddle was given her as a reward. Margaret is having a wonderful time at the famous Maine camp and it can easily be said that she is following in the footsteps of her sister, Mrs. Rutherford Ellis, when as Martha Hodgson she also attended this camp making a fine record in the various activities.

Lee-Roosevelt Group Holds Meeting.

Lee-Roosevelt Auxiliary, N. S. W. V. No. 13, met recently in the Y. W. C. A. building. Mrs. E. G. Andrews, president, presided. Mrs. Lillian Mae Browning was elected delegate to the national convention to be held in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., from August 30 to September 3. Mrs. Fanny Jarard was elected alternate. Mrs. Ola Anderson was appointed chairman of sick committee. The president reported on the fish fry to be given by the Spanish War Veterans on August 8. Mrs. Andrews told of the party given at Base Hospital No. 48 by the auxiliary.

A program of dances and music was given, which was arranged by Mrs. Andrews. Mrs. Daisy Irwin, organizer for the Junior Dancers, reported the forming of a fort at her home last week. There were 15 girls present between the ages of 10 and 20 years.

For Miss Upchurch And Mr. De Foor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Allen entertained at their home at Park West on Wednesday evening with a bridge party honoring Miss Frances Upchurch and her fiancé, Andrew Lynn DeFoor, whose marriage will be a brilliant event of Friday evening.

The home was attractively decorated with summer flowers and a color scheme of pink and white was artistically carried out. Prizes were won by Mrs. John D. Bantley Jr., Dr. Wilbourn E. Upchurch and Mr. Bantley.

McMath-McKenzie.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 9.—Of interest is the marriage of Miss Ruth McMath to Earl McKenzie Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Lee McMath Sr. and the late Mr. McMath, prominent American residents. She graduated from the American High school and finished her education at Ward Belmont College, at Nashville, and Wesleyan Conservatory at Macon. Possessing unusual beauty, the bride is a popular member of the American social contingent.

Mr. McKenzie is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McKenzie Sr., a family long prominently identified in the business and social circles of Montezuma. The groom attended Georgia Tech and was graduated from the University of Georgia. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Mr. McKenzie is associated in business with his father in the McKenzie Lumber and Supply Company. After a 10-day wedding trip to New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie will reside at Montezuma.

NANCY PAGE

This Luncheon Club Makes Money for the Church.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Lois, Eleanor and six other women made up one group of eight in a series of four groups belonging to a church ladies' auxiliary. The purpose of the auxiliary was two-fold, social and money raising. The groups were trying out a new idea. Each group of eight gave four luncheons. At each luncheon one of the members was hostess, and the other seven were to be the money-making part of the group. The hostess was to be the one who prepared the food. The other six members of the group were to be the money-making part of the group. The hostess was to be the one who prepared the food. The other six members of the group were to be the money-making part of the group.

although on hot days they were apt to serve well-chilled buttermilk. Nancy has a leaflet on "Snowers" that she will send on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write her care of The Atlanta Constitution.

St. Charles Garden Club.

St. Charles Garden Club held a meeting and picnic on Thursday and a round-table discussion of summer planting was featured. The president, Mrs. Howard Jones, was presented with a silver serving spoon by Mrs. R. A. Williams in behalf of the club as a birthday gift. Mrs. O. J. Willoughby won the trophy for July month with a display of oriental lilies. The club meets on September 3 at Dogwood Farm.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Friday.—The more you are in public life the more you wonder at the credulity of the average human being. Sometimes the things that come to me are such that I feel that I cannot even notice them, but occasionally they are merely funny and I may let others join me in a passing smile.

In a letter today I am told that it has been spread about in one neighborhood that the President is using his mother's home at Hyde Park as a summer White House, and that the government is paying rent to the family. Somehow the idea of my mother-in-law accepting rent for the brief visits which the President pays to her home, is one of the most humorous things that I can think of, yet, I suppose some people actually believe it. As a matter of fact, it is a saving to the government when a president has a summer home.

We had a very nice picnic last evening. Major General and Mrs. Frank McCoy drove up from Governor's Island. They were much interested in our Val-kill furniture as the government at present is obliged to redecorate the commander's house at Governor's Island.

When you are interested in a building, even though it belongs to the government, you go about with a greater interest in all buildings. Of course, the government buying is done in prescribed ways, but ideas gleaned from other people's houses may turn out to be useful.

Mrs. Morgenthau and her eldest son, came up also. He is taking up architecture, and for practical experience this summer is being allowed to do over an old farm house on recently acquired land. He therefore looked with interest at every detail of our little kitchen.

After our picnic supper those at my table launched into a violent discussion on the future fate of nations and the possibilities for our country in a troubled world. Finally I felt that we were becoming a little too serious and as various games were being played all about us, I moved my group into the other room and we played a game of "rummy."

I took the 7:40 train this morning to New York, where Mrs. Morgenthau and I attended at luncheon of the Good Neighbor League. I have seen many different people, which is one of the difficulties about coming to New York. I always see so many people that I want to stay longer, but back I go to Hyde Park tonight and I will be glad to wake up there tomorrow.

Dahlia Society Announces Methods Of Soil Preparation and Culture

Dr. H. L. Cochran, a member of the staff of the Georgia Experiment Station near Griffin and Norman LaMotte, technical advisor with the staff, have a very systematic method for growing the dahlia plants in the Dahlia Society of Georgia.

Dr. Cochran, horticulturist, in charge of the dahlia garden, began his preparations early in April by having three inches of mulch turned into the ground. This was followed by an application of stable manure, which was disced in and smoothed over several times. Four tons per acre was the amount used. Later, eight hundred pounds of commercial fertilizer per acre was spread broadcast on the level surface and then cultivated into the soil.

A short while before planting the ground was divided into rows four feet apart. Strong stakes, one inch square and six feet long, which had been treated previously with creosote, were placed at the end of each row of four feet; thus making the stakes four feet apart each way. Besides each stake, holes, 16 inches deep and 18 inches wide, were opened. When the plants were set in the holes, enough dirt was pulled around them to keep them in place, but the remaining dirt was left heaped around the edges of the holes in order to prevent too rapid drying. When they were set in the holes, each plant received a bucketful of water. Also, during the drought each plant has been given a bucketful of water twice each week.

Fertilization, however, did not stop at the time of planting, but rather, it has been continued. On the first of August a second application of eight hundred pounds of commercial fertilizer per acre was used on the garden; but this was not scattered broadcast, it was placed in a ring around each plant, and then it was dug into the soil.

Cultivation once a week by a hand hoe was sufficient to retard the growth of weeds. On the first of September, Dr. Cochran and Mr. LaMotte will have the entire dahlia plot covered with a three-inch layer of leaf mulch. The splendid progress made by the plants indicates that there will be a magnificent display of blooms when the garden will be open to the public.

Mrs. Rice Elected Second Vice President of Atlanta Woman's Club

The highlights of the executive board of the Atlanta Woman's Club, which met at the last Friday afternoon, was the election of Mrs. Frederick C. Rice to fill the vacancy of the second vice president of the club. This vacancy was caused by the resignation of Mrs. Harry C. Minier, second vice president. Mrs. Minier, president, read the resignation of Mrs. Minier, which was accepted by the board with regrets. Mrs. John F. MacDougald, chairman of resolutions, was asked to draft a resolution expressing the board's respect, appreciation and love at the loss of Mrs. Minier who finds it impossible to return to Atlanta at present.

Mrs. Rice is a woman of culture and prominence, having filled efficiently the chairmanship of the department of Georgia products for many years. She is a past auditor of the club. Mrs. Rice is honored as president for life of the Peony Club; third vice regent of the Joseph Habersham Chapter of the D. A. R.; chairman of department of conservation of the Atlanta Woman's Club; and a member of the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Alma Maxwell, first vice president of the club, and chairman of the board, presided, and announced that James Melton, noted screen and radio star, will give a concert at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium the second night of the Atlanta Woman's Club, which was the merchants' exposition, an annual event, which will be held at the club the first week in November.

Invitation was given to the board by Mrs. Willard F. Leach, chairman of the garden division, through Mrs. Nicholas Watkins, chairman, to spend the day party at Mrs. Leach's summer home, "Tuckahoe," at Tate Mountain Estates. Mrs. William G. McChesney, Jr., will be hostess at the given in honor of the executive board.

Mrs. Luther C. Holmboe, chairman of motion pictures, announced that the Atlanta Woman's Club was sponsoring "First, a Girl," at a local theatre beginning August 21. Mrs. Fannie Mae Dabney, chairman of membership, announced that the names of the following new members elected by the board: Mesdames John Wells, Lyman C. Morris, K. R. Murphy, and Mrs. J. W. Goldsmith. Mrs. Bachman, a reinstated member, Mrs. Melton stated there will be no other meeting in August, and the first meeting of the club will be held on September 14, and executive board meets the Friday preceding the second Monday.

Calloway Webb Jr., and twelve little playmates of the honored guest have been invited.

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DON'T TALK—DIET.

Dieting may be your conversation piece de resistance without any effect on your weight. Repeating, always, "I am dieting," is a favorite feminine topic, assumes renewed interest at the start of every season.

Above the tinkle of ice in tall glasses there is buzz about where you have been, how good the food was and how much you have gained or lost.

On the spot you plan a slimming program. You simply must get rid of 20 pounds . . . just talking about it almost makes you feel slim.

Dieting makes amusing conversation, but don't let it end there! It's a good idea to put your intentions into action before your enthusiasm loses momentum. Better to lose weight with the next meal by subtracting calories, for you can't bandy words with weight and lose an ounce of real fat.

Send 15 cents in coin for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly name, address and style number.

Although diet removes the pounds, you can lose weight without improving your figure, so you must exercise to discipline soft muscles. Lazy summer days take the tone out of muscles, and firmness is necessary to give the figure beautiful lines.

If you have gone through the summer without exercise, begin with a general exercise program to recondition your muscles.

For any or all of the mentioned leaflets, send a large self-addressed, stamped envelope. Be sure that sufficient postage is included. Address your request to Ida Jean Kain in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Red-headed Gay, daughter of Mrs. Diana Avery, prominent in New York society, is engaged to Alan Riggs, and her older sister, Patti, is a selfish, to Richard Miles. As Patti sails on her honeymoon, Diana tells Gay the wedding took almost their last dollars, as Stephen, her husband, who died suddenly, left nothing although supposedly wealthy. Alan, handsome fortune-hunter, had followed the wealthy Lucia Haring from Florida to propose, but fell in love with Gay at first sight. Gay, very much in love, is deeply hurt when Alan says he can't ask her to share his poverty. When Mrs. Haring's editor sends him to learn why the engagement was broken, Gay is hurt and Alan blames the door, saying "Why don't you stop crying?" Diana and Gay take a small apartment with Chris in their neighbor. He apologizes for his earlier conduct. His friend, Penny, who is a model's job at Marchand's, goes to work as tea room hostess. Lucia announces her engagement to Alan, but he often waits for Gay outside Marchand's, seeing them dining together. Instead, Gay must never see Alan again, takes her home and tells her he loves her. He sells for Nassau to finish writing a play he tells Gay.

Gay, when are you going to let me stop being just your friend and let me be what I want to be? This is too casual and it can't go on this way! There are girls and girls I've kissed and danced with—but I've had to come back to New York to meet the only girl I ever wanted to marry."

She did not draw away. She closed her eyes tightly to keep the tears back because everything was so terribly confused. Added to the other demands people made of her was Gregg's demand—no, not demand but his plea to love him. She thought with a sudden shock that every one in her life asked something of her, every one except Chris. He had demanded nothing, asked for nothing.

"I know and understand that in your life now there isn't much room for love. But, Gay, love me, love me a little. Let me help you take some of the confusion out of things for you. They all expect too much of you."

"Perhaps I'm afraid to love you even a little, Gregg. The people I love always go away. They take themselves out of my life."

Gay winced with distaste at the ugly thought about her father. What had he not endured in silence? It had hastened his death. Stephen, generous and kind, could not tell his family he'd been "cleaned out" with the others. It was futile to remind Patti of those things. It had always been futile to remind her of anything except what concerned her own vanity and comfort. Gregg, accepted everywhere and in great demand so everywhere, would not subject her to the coolness of her old friends. But New York society as a whole knew and deeply resented that Gregg Randolph, who sent regrets to their invitations, had met and was in love with Gay Van Avery. Every one knew. A columnist had told the world. "Chris, down in Nassau, knows," Gay thought. "Alan knows."

"You're very lovely tonight," he said.

Gay, her white shoulders rising above the white satin dress, smiled. "It's the champagne. You're spoiling me, Gregg. I used to take beautiful dining rooms and perfect service for granted. Now it's as if I were being permitted to borrow it for a little time."

"This is your world, my dear," said Gregg.

When Lucia and Alan came in, Gregg pressed her hand. "Let's go," he said. And he knew he could not bear her eyes following Alan, loving him. Suddenly she had seemed far away and lost to him when Alan appeared.

Lucia pulled off her white gloves and reached for a cigar. "Did you see them, Alan? They left when we came in. Gay isn't doing badly by herself. She's wearing a new dress. Gregg probably bought her."

"That's unkind of you," Alan said moodily. "Catty."

"What else is one to think?" She blew the smoke upward. "Every one is talking about it. Of course, she'll marry him. Gay's no fool. But every hostess in New York is trying to get him to her parties."

"I don't think she'll marry him," Alan said soberly. "She'll never marry him for his money." His head had spun when he saw her and he wondered how he could endure Lucia's lame conversation all evening with the memory of Gay in that white dress and her curls brilliant and shining beneath the shadowy lights.

In the narrow hall Gay stood beside Gregg where she had left off to stand beside Chris. How different they were! Gregg—with his top hat in his hand, his heavy white silk scarf tied close to his chin, his long black coat and Chris—in rempled tweeds, in a blue shirt and vivid tie, and his unruly black hair disheveled. Gregg drew her close gently.

"I'm not in love with him," said Gay.

Patti bit her lip. "But his money would make Mother out of that horrid tea room. Think about that."

Gay thought about it the next night when she was dining with Gregg at a small exclusive restaurant.

She had seen him continually for weeks. His large car, parked outside Marchand's at noon and at 5, was a familiar sight. They had lunched and dined and danced together. They were always alone. Gregg, accepted everywhere and in great demand so everywhere, would not subject her to the coolness of her old friends. But New York society as a whole knew and deeply resented that Gregg Randolph, who sent regrets to their invitations, had met and was in love with Gay Van Avery. Every one knew. Gregg drew her close gently.

"You're trembling, darling," Diana's voice soothed. "You're tired. Diana looked tired. Tired and suddenly old. "I was horribly seasick," said Patti, asking for sympathy from the one person who never denied it.

"I know, dear. I'll fix the bed."

"I'll fix it," said Gay.

"You'll sleep with Penny," Diana said to Gay. "We'll manage."

When Patti was in bed, her yellow hair spread out on the pillow, sleeping as a child sleep after a fearful tantrum, Gay stirred the fire in the living room and looked at her mother. "Luck is a curious lady," Diana said softly, pressing her forehead with her hand. "When you win, you win splendidly. When you begin to lose, everything turns against you." She drew her mouth into a wry smile. "You and I are on the unlucky merry-go-round, darling. We can't turn Patti out. I'm sure none of this is Richard's fault. I know my child. Richard has fixed ideas and abhors extravagance. All this is probably because he refused her something she wanted. But he's not the forgiving sort. If there's any punning to be done, she'll have to do it."

"People have always had to come to her," said Gay. To take Diana's mind from the immediate problem she said, "Millicent Randolph and her son came in the store today. She knew I was your daughter. We're invited there for dinner tomorrow night. I liked her."

"Is she back after all these years? She is charming, isn't she, and unaffected and utterly frank? She's never been a snob. And her son—what's he like?"

Gay smiled. "Tall and blond, a nice mouth, a calm voice, and a tendency toward kissing hands. My child, Richard has fixed ideas and abhors extravagance. All this is probably because he refused her something she wanted. But he's not the forgiving sort. If there's any punning to be done, she'll have to do it."

He's always pacing the floor. Men are often such restless creatures. Not since Hector left town have we known a woman who could beat the average male at floor pacing.

Once he decides to go out he can't wait to get started. He seems to think it a waste of time for a girl to put her hat and coat on. As for powdering her nose, he thought as though it were deliberate stalling. And while he is telling a girl all about how slow she is he paces up and down, back and forth.

If he understood a girl, he'd know that his pacing only encouraged her to take her time. It makes the old suffragette rise up in her. And if anything will insure a girl to change her dress at the last minute it's a man with his hat in his hand. Take a tip from us, big boy, and learn to sit down when you're told your hands. It's much the cleverest way to speed your girl up.

G. O. P. 'Tales' Against Roosevelt Are Branded as Fakes by New Deal

Newspapers in East Claim Army Engineers at Passamaquoddy Project in Maine Are Feeding Bread and Pies to Pigs.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Washington officials, who know whereof they speak, have branded as "faked" or "semi-faked" recent stories regarding New Deal public works operations at Passamaquoddy, Maine, by certain large reactionary daily newspapers of the east.

For example, the widely printed story of yesterday that army engineers in charge of "Quoddy" tide-harbor project were feeding hundreds of pigs and loaves of bread to pigs maintained by garbage collectors near Eastport, Maine, has been branded as a canard by the engineer corps of the army, which has in charge not only the Quoddy project but similar projects in every state of the Union. Army engineers have always been proud of their work both afield and at the War Department here and when the Quoddy canard was brought to their attention they deeply resented the implication of waste and inefficiency. Colonel Philip B. Fleming, the engineer in charge at Quoddy, has reported to his superiors at the War Department that the quartermaster officer in charge of the Quoddy mess is not now and never has had a contract for pigs. All pigs served are baked in the quartermaster's own cook house, and it is reasonable certainly that pigs are not being baked for pigs or garbage collectors.

But the Quoddy yarn is only one of many that have been broadcast against the Roosevelt administration either by the press or by word of mouth, with the obvious intention of discrediting the President, his family and their friends. Some of the other canards are considerably more vicious than the Quoddy falsehood.

A collection made by democratic campaign managers shows that Postmaster General James A. Farley was justified several months ago in his prediction of a "dirty campaign." The Roosevelt-haters are already up to their elbows in mud, and one of the most widely peddled of the lies is that Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, receives $36,000 a year from the government (taxpayers' money, of course), for permitting use of her Hyde Park estate as the summer White House.

The truth is that she receives nothing whatever. The government pays no summer White House rent. Unlike President Hoover, his predecessor, Mr. Roosevelt charges the taxpayers nothing for his summer abode. Hoover kept a company of government-paid marines constantly on duty at his Rapidan camp even after they had built it for him.

Source of the summer White House and Quoddy yarns is not definitely known. Democratic managers have their suspicions but no proof. They would not be surprised to find that the republican propaganda mill does nothing to discourage the spread of false charges against the President.

Whether the tales actually originate in republican headquarters is not known. The probability is that at least part of them sprout from the fertile minds of "economic royalists," and are eagerly circulated by amateur rather than professional propagandists.

Some of the lies about the administration are directly traceable to the G. O. P. press agents. Secretary of Interior Ickes pinned one on them last week. The republican national committee charged in a press release going out under its own name that the PWA was "shaking down" Indiana contractors for forcing them to run newspaper advertisements glorifying the public works program.

Ickes investigation revealed that the Indianapolis News, an anti-Roosevelt republican paper, was solicited by the PWA for this kind of advertising. Obviously the PWA was not doing anything to increase the advertising lineage of an unfriendly paper.

Receiving Help.
The republicans recently have been receiving help in their whispering campaign from Gerald L. K. Smith, the Long-Townsend-Lemke speaker from Louisiana. Smith doesn't whisper. He shouts. But some of the insinuations he shouts have the same effect as behind-the-hand confidences.

In his speech before the National Press Club this week, for example, Smith confessed that he was receiving reports that the object of the administration's reciprocal trade and production control policies is to enhance the value of cotton land in Brazil and grazing land in Argentina. He made it plain that he expected to find President Roosevelt's friends if not the President himself, owning large tracts in these two countries.

He talked also of keeping the late Senator Huey Long's files under double lock and key. The implication being that these mysterious files contain evidence of the most damaging nature against the President—probably that he was the trigger-man in Long's assassination.

Democratic managers expect much more of this sort of thing before the campaign is over.

They also anticipate subtle use of the movies as an anti-Roosevelt propaganda medium. Already newswall companies dominated by William Randolph Hearst are unobtrusively poisoning the wells of Roosevelt sentiment. Orders have gone out to photographers to give Governor Alf Landon the "breaks" wherever possible. When both he and President Roosevelt appear in the same sequence Landon is to be shown first, Landon last, thus giving the republican candidate the preferential position. It is also understood that outright anti-Roosevelt propaganda films are in the making for use toward the end of the campaign.

EDWARD IS GREETED BY THRONING IN AUSTRIA

Strictly Incognito, King Pauses at Salzburg on Way to Adriatic.

Salzburg, Austria, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Smiling and in a happy mood, King Edward paused here today in his holiday journey to the Adriatic sea where the yacht Nahlin awaits the start of a month's cruise.

The king, traveling as the Duke of Lancaster in strict incognito, was dressed in a light brown suit, and a white straw hat.

He stepped from the Orient Express and chatted amiably with railroad police officials and members of the British colony who were among the throng at the station.

During the two-hour stay, Edward motored to the leading Salzburg hotel for snack before leaving for Bludenz, in the Dalmatian mountains near the coast.

Dalmatia was decked in holiday attire in preparation for a huge welcome for the Duke of Lancaster.

The Nahlin, standing by "somewhere in the Adriatic," will be the king's home for nearly a month during a cruise upon a closely guarded route through the numerous islands off the coast of Yugoslavia across the sea from Italy.

Accompanying the yacht will be two British destroyers constantly on guard.

Edward established a precedence by flying from Fort Belvedere near London to Calais to fly the British flag on his arrival. It was hailed down shortly before his plane landed.

The cruise in the southern waters was decided upon in place of a holiday on the French Riviera after the Spanish civil war assumed an alarming aspect.

TECHWOOD DAY PLANS TO BE MAPPED TODAY

Preliminary plans for the dedication and formal opening of the Techwood low-cost federal housing project in Atlanta will be mapped at 11 o'clock this morning when a group of 27 prominent citizens meet in Mayor Keith's suite in city hall.

The opening, scheduled for September 1, will mark the beginning of the first federal housing project in the United States. The day will be known as Techwood Day, and federal and local officials will participate in the ceremonies.

ROSWELL MAN HURT AS AUTO OVERTURNS

Paul Berry, 20, of Roswell, Ga., was reported near death at Grady hospital this morning of injuries received early yesterday when the truck in which he was riding with his brother, Cecil, 22, struck a stone and overturned near Sandy Springs on the Atlanta-Roswell highway.

Doctors said he probably sustained a brain concussion and fracture of the skull. His right foot was badly mangled.

Cecil Berry, driver of the truck, was said to have been uninjured.

Pink, Silk Steps Flot Over Royal Yacht Club

COWES, Isle of Wight, Aug. 9. (UP)—Members of the Royal Yacht Squadron, the world's snootiest club, were agast today when they saw a pair of pink, silk steps fluttering from atop the club's flagstaff. An official, who hastily pulled the dainty garment down, found it tied with seamanlike knots. Apparently it had flown all night.

Club officials believed the "penman" had been hoisted for a bet or by an overindulgent yachtman.

SOUTHERN PINE BEETLE CAUSES LITTLE DAMAGE

Report Made Despite Ideal Conditions for Breeding.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Despite intermittent drought conditions in some southern states, ideal breeding weather for the southern pine beetle, the Bureau of Entomology said today it had not received reports of any widespread damage by the destructive pest.

Meanwhile, however, science's battle against the tiny scourge of southern forests goes on in the research laboratories of the department. Experiments are being carried on to develop a poison to be injected into trees which will make a fatal feast for the little beetle with the big name, dendroctonus frontalis.

Bureau officials charge up a $50,000,000 damage to pine trees in southern states during periodic widespread infestation of the beetle since 1901.

The big damage is caused by baby beetles in the larvae or grub stage of development. The adult beetle, about an eighth of an inch long, bores through the bark and excavates winding S-shaped galleries where it lays its eggs.

From the eggs come the grubs, which destroy the soft inner bark from which the trees get their nourishment.

Tree groups that have fallen prey to an attack by the beetles die quickly and then are abandoned for vigorous green trees.

Three to five generations occur annually and the beetles can increase 1,000 per cent in a single generation. In a short time, bureau officials said, they can multiply to a dangerous proportion.

Direct methods of control are difficult, bureau officials said, and the trees are at the mercy of the weather. Dry weather is favorable for the breeding of the pest, while in periods of normal or heavy rainfall the beetle disappears. Cold weather proves an effective check on outbreaks and largely confines the bug to southern areas.

ROBERT, GARDNER MEET IN CAROLINA

Democratic Party Secretary To Confer With Leaders of Three States.

HIGHLANDS, N. C., Aug. 9.—(AP) L. W. (Chip) Robert, of Atlanta, secretary of the democratic national committee, arrived here late Saturday for a series of political conferences with democratic leaders of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee.

O. Max Gardner, former governor of North Carolina and former national democratic committeeman, accompanied Robert here from Asheville, where they had discussed political affairs briefly with Marvin McIntyre, secretary to President Roosevelt, who is vacationing there.

Robert summoned State Democratic Chairman J. Wallace Winborne, of North Carolina; Ben Leppard, of South Carolina; and C. T. Bell, of Tennessee, to meet him here and discuss campaign matters in their states.

Robert and Gardner spent Saturday evening conferring with several party leaders from Georgia, who are vacationing here. Hugh Howell, of Atlanta, Georgia democratic chairman, who is anti-New Deal, was not invited to the conferences. Robert did not disclose with whom he talked tonight, but he did enthusiastically predict that Georgia would be in the Roosevelt column in the fall election by a big majority.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 9.—(AP)—More than 1,000 members of the 123d infantry, Georgia national guard, began a two weeks' training period at Camp Foster here today.

The 124th infantry, Florida national guard, moved out of camp after two weeks of training. The 121st infantry of Georgia and the 118th infantry of South Carolina preceded the Florida guardsmen at the camp.

TEDDY ROOSEVELT JR. WILL VISIT LONDON

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Theodore Roosevelt Jr., son of the former President, is expected to visit Governor Alf M. Landon Monday.

Landon said he had no comment. Both the republican presidential nominee and his father backed the "Bull Moose" movement when the elder Roosevelt ran against William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson in 1912.

Democrat "Burned Up" At Request From G.O.P.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 9.—(AP)—Squire George B. Coleman, life-long democrat, was "burned up" when he received a letter from the republican national committee asking him to contribute a dollar to the campaign fund.

Returning the letter to Chairman John D. Hamilton, Squire Coleman wrote:

"I do not know why you sent me this. I've always been a democrat. I would follow Roosevelt, hell and back. I'm a democrat justice of the peace, have been for 24 years and just recently was re-elected for six more years.

"My father was also a J. P. for 36 years. He was chairman of the state democratic committee three times, every time Bob Taylor (former Tennessee governor) was elected, beating the hell out of the republicans."

Professor Resumes Life of Hermit After Eighteen Months in House

84-Year-Old, Angered by Attempt to Procure Old-Age Assistance for Him, Points to Ear of Corn and Jar of Water as All He Needs.

COSHOCTON, Ohio, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Ohio's college professor turned hermit, white-bearded G. Ora Steinberger, has gone back to nature again.

Steinberger, who once taught art at Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, lived more than 12 years in a tree-hut along the Mad river, north of Springfield.

Eighteen months ago Steinberger, who declares he is 84 years old, was prevailed upon by relatives to make his home with John Hartsock at near West Lafayette.

Now he has taken to the woods and valleys in the vicinity of West Lafayette because friends insisted that he seek a state old-age pension. He maintained he did not need aid.

Slight and spindly, Steinberger is a picturesque figure as he roams through the hills. He sketches artistic contour maps of the locality and these he posts where they can be found.

What caused him to take up a hermit's existence? That is a secret he holds.

JOHN H. HUDGINS SR. SUCCEEDS IN DECATUR

John H. Hudgins Sr., 77, father of Carl T. Hudgins, former member of the legislature from Decatur, and J. Harold Hudgins, Atlanta contractor, died yesterday at his residence, 638 West Ansley street.

Mr. Hudgins, who had been retired from active business for several years, had been in declining health for some time.

Other survivors include three daughters, the Misses Ruth and Mary Hudgins, and Mrs. A. H. Feizer, and two brothers, J. L. Hudgins, Avondale, and W. T. Hudgins, Bolton.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of A. S. Turner, with the Rev. Robert J. Armor officiating. Burial will be in Decatur cemetery.

ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER FACES TRIAL TUESDAY

H. P. Howe, of Dallas county, alleged wife slayer, will be taken tomorrow to Dallas, where the case is scheduled to come up in court before Judge J. B. Hutcherson.

Howe, who was arrested several weeks ago in Chicago after a nationwide search, has been held for safekeeping in the Fulton tower.

Paul S. Etheridge, of Atlanta, will defend the alleged slayer, while Solicitor General Hutchins, of the Talapoosa circuit, will direct the prosecution. Wide interest is being shown in the case in Paulding and surrounding counties.

Haverty's Breaks All-Time Sales Record for July

Huge Crowds Attend 51st August Sale at Pioneer Furniture Store.

With July having shattered all sales records for the corresponding month in the history of the firm, the Haverty Furniture Company, corner Pryor street and Edgewood avenue, has entered into the second week of their annual August sale with what promises to be the biggest sales month in their entire history.

The event, now in progress and with tremendous crowds attending, marks the fifty-first annual August sale that has been held by this pioneer Atlanta furniture firm, which was organized in 1885.

"The record that we are now making is due not only to better and more prosperous times, but to the unusual values that mass buying for 18 Haverty stores throughout the South has made possible," said W. H. Slater, vice president and manager of the Atlanta store.

"This is an August sale that is more than a tradition. It's a sale such as we've never seen before, because our buyers searched the leading furniture marts for bigger and better bargains, and we are now offering even greater selection and a tremendous variety of quality furniture and more outstanding values than ever before."

Furthermore, Mr. Slater pointed out, there has been no blue-penciling or cutting of prices on random or left-over stock. "The furniture was as offering during this August sale," he said, "is representative of the newest in design, quality and workmanship and was purchased expressly for this sale. It was only through quantity buying for our many stores that the prices far below regular prices are made possible."

That the public is appreciative of this fact, Mr. Slater pointed out, is indicated by the record crowds attending and the record-breaking sales that are being made.

The artistic trend of the present day buyer, Mr. Slater pointed out, is being shown by the large number that are consulting Haverty's interior decorator for ideas and suggestions. This service, together with Haverty's easy terms, no interest and no carrying charge, makes it possible for the family of average means to completely furnish their home as it should be and at no burden from the lack of cash.

The sale this year is storewide, including individual items of furniture, as well as complete suites.

Of particular interest is the living room suites, odd sofas and occasional pieces. These are shown in a variety of covers with colored velvet, Stranex weave freize, brocade, Kidmo mohair, antique (Austria velvet), Curle-Rattinae, Collins & Aikman Curly Mohair, and others of the latest tapestries. The touch of the artist is added with solid mahogany hand-carved wood, and the utmost in comfort through Kant-Sag construction.

In the rug department are being shown the newest in flat patterns by Firth, Bigelow-Sanford and other manufacturers of the finest in rugs. Modern, Oriental effects and Chinese designs are all being shown, and in one display every rug has an historical background, with the history of the rug attached.

Officers of the Haverty Furniture Companies, Inc., with headquarters in the Main Atlanta store and which have the leading stores in larger cities from Winston-Salem, N. C., on the north, Charleston, S. C.; on the east, Jacksonville, Fla.; on the south, Little Rock, Ark.; on the west, Dallas and Houston, Texas; on the southwest, are: J. J. Haverty, president; Clarence Haverty, first vice president and treasurer; William Akers and L. A. Witherspoon, vice presidents; Russell Bellman, secretary; W. H. Slater, vice president and manager of the Atlanta store; and M. P. Cannon, general advertising and sales promotion manager.
